LEGISLATURE MET AT NOON.

TO PROTECT THE ELECTION LAW.

This Was the Only Subject Discussed at Joint Democratic Caucuses Today---To Investigate Treasurer Worth's Connection With the High Admiral of the North Carolina Navy---Frank Winston Favored Letting the Governor Alone.

Special to the Telegram.

Raleigh, N. C., June 12—The adjourned session of the Legislature met today promptly at noon after a three hours caucus by the Democratic members. There were present at roll call 44 Senators and 85 Representatives—all Democrats. Only 9 Republicans and Populists answered the roll call.

Since the last session three members have died and three have resigned.

Representative Francis D. Winston, of Bertie county, introduced a resolution in the House to provide for a committee to call on State Treasurer Worth to ascertain whether he had paid out money to Shell Fish Commissioner Theophilus White under the resolution act of last year.

It had been agreed at the joint Democratic caucus last night that all bills and resolutions be referred to the committes on rules. Winston's resolution was referred to this committee.

Representative Locke Craig introduced a resolution endorsing the establishment by the government of the Appalachian National Park. This was also referred to the committee on rules.

The House of Representatives decided that it was unnecessary to notify Governor Russell that it was in session, holding that this was no new session, but merely a continuation of the last. Speaker Overman thought this was true

In speaking of the matter Representative Winston said he favored letting the Governor alone, at which there was laughter

A resolution expressing regret at the death of Representatives Wall, Hart and Troutman, and raising a committee to draft suitable memorials, was adopted as a mark of respect to the dead.

The House adjourned at 4 o'clock, when another joint Democratic caucus was immediately begun.

At the caucuses today the only matter discussed was the complete protection of the election law against fusion injunction.

BY THE LAYING ON OF HANDS.

Census-taker—"And when were you born, madam?" Mrs. Kute—"Did the woman next door tell you when she was born?" "Yes." "Well, if you'll tell me what year she said she was born in I'll be able to figure out the year of my birth."

INCREASE FROM $200,000 to $1,000,000

The Lancaster Cotton Mills Have Done That Thing—Little Boys Burn a Cottage—Elks Lost on the Midway.

Correspondence of the Telegram.

Charlotte, June 12.—A four room cottage near Charlotte was burned yesterday. The work was the deed of two white boys who built a fire under the dwelling evidently out of a pure dedire to do meanness and see a fire. They ran away and made their escape. The loss is several hundred dollars.

The Elks, according to Major Rutzler lost $150 on the recent Midway, one of the chief features of Charlotte's Gala week.

The funeral services over the remains of the late Joseph V. Linton were held this afternon at 5:30 o'clock in the Lutheran church. Deceased was well known in Charlotte. He was a brother of Mr. S. E. Linton, manager of the Raleigh Gas Works.

A big Democratic rally takes place tonight in Sharon township at which prominent Democrats will speak. A brass band will furnish music for the occasion.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Lancaster, S. C. Cotton Mills held here Saturday night, it was decided to increase the capital stock of the mill from $200,000 to $1,000,000.

SKILLED IN EXAGERATION.

Some days ago the Telegram referred editorially to the amazing veracity(?) of the report sent the Asheville Gazette of a crowd attending a Republican gathering in Asheboro, when Judge Adams and others spoke. The remarkable and truthful(?) report sent to the Republican organ in Asheville said the speeches were heard by 10,000 enthusiastic voters, when, as a matter of fact there are not 10,000 voters in the entire county of Randolph, including Democrats, Republicans, Populists, Prohibitionists and mugwumps.

A gentleman who was in Asheboro the day of the speaking says the most liberal estimate of the number present would not place it at more than 300, fully 100 of which were Democrats. White and black Republicans composed the remaining 200. From which it will be seen that the reporter of the Asheville paper must have a very vivid and elastic imagination.

The gentleman who filled a Republican appointment at a certain school house in this county one night last week must be related to the correspondent above referred to. Upon his return to Greensboro the next day he stated that at least 75 or 80 men heard him speak the night before. Later it was learned from a trustworthy gentleman who was there that there were, by actual count, 6 Democrats, 11 white Republicans and 35 negroes present.

British Lose a Batalion.

London, June 11.—Lieutenant General Sir Frederick Forestier-Walker, in command of the lines of communication in South Africa, reports that in the disaster to the troops on June 7th, at Roodeval, where the Boers cut Lord Roberts' line of communication, the Fourth Batallion of the Derbyshire Regiment were all killed, wounded, or made prisoners except six enlisted men. Two officers and 15 men were killed and five officers and 72 men were wounded, many of them severely.

The Boers returned the wounded to the British. The officers killed were Lieutenant Colonel Baird-Douglas and Lieutenant Hawley.

It is inferred that the Boers captured over 500 men and as late as June 10th held positions cutting off the British forces north of Kronstad from re-enforcements.

Belle Boyd, the Confederate Spy Dead.

Kilbourne, Wis., June 11—Belle Boyd, the female spy of Confederate fame, died suddenly of heart disease, at Kilbourne, tonight, where she had gone to lecture. She was 57 years of age and known all over the country.

Agent—"Good morning. I've called to see you about the Cyclopaedic Dictionary." Sharpley—"Sorry, but I don't need it now." "Why, you told me last month if I called again about this time you'd take it." "I know, but in the meantime I've become engaged to a Boston lady."

TO MAKE A DEMONSTRATION.

UNDER THE FLAGS OF ALL EUROPE.

A Great Demonstration is Planned to be Lead by Russia and England—All the Governments That Cannot Have Forces on Hand Will Be Asked the Use of Their Flags—Japan and the United States to Take Part.

By Wire to the Telegram.

London, June 12.—Desperate fighting is in progress in the streets of Pekin, say the Shanghai reports. A battle has been going on since Sunday. There must have been terrible loss of life. It is probable that mobs of Boxers and their adherents attacked the legations which were defended by foreign troops with a few machine guns.

JAPAN AND COREA.

Yokohoma, June 12.—Corea has proposed to Japan that the audience which the Japanese minister demanded be postponed pending the settlement of the questions arising out of the putting to death of a refugee. It is reported that Japan has demanded immediate audience.

THE LAST NEWS FROM PEKIN.

London, June 12, 3 a. m.—The last message out of Pekin to reach London, left there yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, going by way of the Russian telegraph, the Tien-Tsin line being cut. It is as follows: "General Tung, a Mohammedan, extremely hostile to foreigners, arrived here this morning and had a long audience with Prince Tuan, father of the heir apparent, who is seemingly friendly to the Boxers. Prince Tuan has been appointed chief of the Foreign Office over Prince Ching, who is more friendly toward the foreigners. The dispatch of more marines was in response to a telegram from the ministers to the consuls at Tien-Tsin for additional troops. Conveyances have left Pekin to meet the troops coming by the first train.

"The arrival of the Empress Dowager has rendered the city somewhat more quiet than it had been recently. The Protestants have erected a barricade before the building in which they have taken refuge, and they have a small guard. The Catholics are concentrated north of the Cathedal under the protection of a French guard of 25 men, who will hold out to the end. I am convinced that Pekin, especially the Tartar city, is safe.

"At Tien-Tsin the Viceroy finally consented to furnish transports for a relief force of 400 under an American commander. The partial restoration of the railway is expected to be effected by tomorrow. More massacres of Christians are reported."

Shanghai, under yesterday's date, cables that there has been street fighting in Pekin since early Sunday afternoon. The Russians are making large purchases of canned provisions at Shanghai, and everything points to an outbreak of hostilities.

The United States, according to dispatches, have given "hearty adhesion" to the scheme for a European demonstration. The Russian minister in Pekin, who also acts as the envoy of Denmark, is credited with having sent a dispatch to the Danish Foreign Office to the effect that a demonstration has been planned, under the leadership of England and Russia, in which all the great powers and several of the smaller will take part. The latter are not called upon to send troops, as there are enough on the spot; but they are to be asked to delegate the right to hoist their flags to the great powers in order that a demonstration may be made, or a battle fought, under the flags of all Europe. Japan and the United States have been informed and agree to the arrangement.

Buller Has Almond's Neck.

By Wire to the Telegram.

London, June 12.—It is announced officially that Buller has forced the Almond's neck mountain pass between the Natal and Orange frontier almost opposite Langs Nek, the famous pass leading into the Transvaal.

1500 Boers Surrendered.

By Wire to the Telegram.

London, June 12.—Word comes from Bloomfontein that fifteen hundred Boers in the Ficksburg district have surrendered to Brabant. It is also announced that the Boer general Oliver was killed in the fight at Rioorjant.

All Kind of Rumors From Africa.

By Wire to the Telegram.

London, June 12.—A plentiful crop of stories has been filtering through Lorenzo Marquez. Gen' Dewet, with thirteen thousand burghers, it is said, is marching on Johannesburg. The Boers have retaken Bloemfontein, where Steyn again occupies the presidency. The British have sustained a severe defeat at Elandafontein, and also lost 750 killed and wounded, and 150 prisoners in a fight at Vredfort. Nothing from any other source lends color to these stories. The last is probably the Boer version of the disaster to the militia batallion of the Derbyshire regiment at Foodoval.

Train Wrecked.

By Wire to the Telegram.

St. Louis, June 12—A special from Spokane says that the great northern eastbound passenger train which left yesterday was thrown from the track on Summit Mountain, by a broken rail early this morning. The engine and four coaches are reported ditched. A score or more passengers are injured, some of them fatally.

'NEATH THE MOON'S SILVERY RAYS.

A merry crowd of young people thoroughly enjoyed a tally-ho drive through the moonlight to Guilford Battle Ground last night, where a few fleeting hours were spent most pleasantly. The party was given in honor of Miss Lettie Hairston and Miss Maggie Jones, who are the guests of Mrs. Dr. W. A. Lash.

The large pavilion was utilized for dancing, and while the air was filled with the dulcet strains of harmonious music those who cared to indulge tripped the "light fantastic" to their hearts' content. At 11:30 a dainty luncheon was served, two long tables being well filled with toothsome viands and delectable refreshments.

Miss Hairston with Everett B. King, Miss Jones with H. C. Berger, Miss Alice Small with William O. White, Miss Nellie Merrimon with T. J. McAdoo, Miss Bessie Merrimon with W. H. Bishop, Miss White, of Henderson, with Robert D. Douglas, Miss Nannie White, of Henderson, with Junius I. Scales, Miss Maude Hunter with W. Giles Mebane, Miss Lillian Staples with W. B. Tallman, Miss Daisy Carraway with J. E. Mann, Miss Sydnor, of Richmond, with Mr. Kellar, Miss Queenie McDonald with Will Hughes, Miss Lola Carraway with John S. Michaux, Miss Janey Gainey with G. A. Rankin, Miss Marjorie Lyon with T. S. Horry, Miss Dora Bevill with Harry Sergeant, Miss Jessie Scott with Paul Schenck, Miss Mozelle Andrews with Frank Leak, Miss Margaret Glenn with J. R. Rankin, Miss May Harrison with George Vanstory, Miss Louise Rankin, of Reidsville, with C. P. Sellars, Miss Tucker, of Raleigh, with Julius Cone.

Stags: Messrs. W. T. Powe, A. H. Staples and DeWitt Kase.

The party was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Catlin.

An Invitation From the Banks.

An informal reception will be tendered the visitors on Thursday night at the club rooms, to which the business public and ladies are also invited. The Home Orchestral Club will furnish music for the occasion.

Summary Proceedings.

The Proximity Manufacturing Company brought summary proceedings before Justice Wolfe yesterday afternoon to dispossess J. C. Smith of a house he has been occupying at Proximity. Until the recent lockout at the mills Smith was employed by the Proximity Manufacturing company. 'Squire Wolfe continued the hearing until Friday afternoon.

DISCUSSED THE FRANCHISE.

Committee Met Last and Talked of the Proposed Street Railway---The Franchise Regarded as Very Liberal.

The special committee appointed by the Board of Aldermen to investigate and report upon the ordinance offered at the last meeting of the board to grant a street railway franchise met last night. The matter was discussed fully and with due deliberation, the committee desiring to take no undue or ill-advised action. The committee will meet again before the assembling of the Board of Alderman tonight and formulate a report. It is more than probable that the report will recommend the granting of the franchise.

A few minor objections have been raised to the franchise, as incorporated in the ordinance introduced Friday night, but it is thought they can be aranged satisfactorily to all concerned. For instance, some think the franchise should stipulate the schedule upon which the cars are to be run. Others are opposed to including the right to operate a public electric lighting and power plant on account of the intention of the city to operate its own plant. This objection is met by the answer that if the Guilford Power Company, or any other company, can furnish light and power cheaper than the can the city, so much the better for the citizens of Greensboro.

Another point raised is as to whether the aldermen can grant a franchise for a street railway along Elm street on account of a previous franchise granted some years ago for a line that was never operated. It is understood that this matter has been arranged between representatives of the new Company and the Company holding the franchise.

Upon the whole the proposed franchise is regarded as very liberal, as it imposes no obligations upon the city.

A MISSIONARY LAWN PARTY.

The Light Bearers of West Market Street church invite your attention to a lawn party which they intend giving on Thursday evening next, on the lawn of Rev. Dr. L. W. Crawford, on West Market street.

The young people will be sure, in addition to providing good things to please the palate, to give you a merry time; and you could hardly while away an hour more pleasantly than by sitting in the open air, beneath the light of the moon, and forgetting the the heat of the day in eating the delicious ice cream that will be provided for a very little sum to a very good cause. Help these little missionary workers, who will be most grateful for your patronage.

ARRAIGNED FOR MURDER.

Will Dick's Life in the Hands of Twelve Men, Good and True.

When Superior Court convened this morning Will Dick was arraigned for the murder of Charlie Thom, both colored. An hour and a half was consumed in empaneling a jury, after which the hearing of evidence was begun. A hard fight will be made for the defendant, who is represented by Col. John A. Barringer.

The murder was committed one night during the closing days of December, 1899, as a crowd of negroes were returning from a Christmas tree at a church south of town. Some one in the crowd fired a revolver and Charlie Thom fell dead. Will Dick was accused of the crime, and at the preliminary hearing before a magistrate the evidence was adjudged sufficient to bind him over to court without bail.

MR. AVERY ON THE CHINESE.

SIDE LIGHTS THROWN ON BOXERS.

A Comparison Between the Present Outbreak of the Boxers and a Former Insurrection—The Awful Mixture of Ignorance and Stupidity That Actuates Them. What a Cow Told its Owner—Believed That Missionaries Baked Children—A Missionary and Children in a Garrett.

I. E. Avery in Charlotte Observer.

Daily from China come tidings of the doings of the Boxers, and to keep tally with the Associated Press, the outsider is forced to turn his attention to a study of intricacies and complexities of the Eastern question as applied to the kingdom of the pigtails. In the world apart from China the Boxers appear as a seething, raging rabble, who also when it is understood that their malevolence is founded, in major part, upon resentment against foreign intrusion or interference the surmise as to their organization will be correct in a general way.

* * * *

The history of the attempts to civilize or Christianize China show that during five or six years the natives are at peace with the residents from other lands. On the sixth year they are apt to become ugly and are a delicate problem for diplomatic handling. If they speak in self-excuse they talk as fools; and, for that reason, are an easy mark for big indemnity. Their motives, however, are less assailable. They argue that they bother or molest no other people in the world. When they get tired of asking themselves why don't the foreign devils let us alone?—they sometimes become infuriated to the extent that a man can feel rage on a fish and rice diet. Then they seize upon some imaginary pretext, and charge on the nearest missionary buildings. Usually intervention is prompt and only loss of property results; but the records contain tales of the slaughter of women and children that stir to the depths.

* * * *

This writing considers the Boxers as a big, but very dangerous and menacing mob. If they purposed merely to cut the throats of the Emperor's troops, their suppression should be the concern of China alone. But when they placard dates for the destruction of the foreigners in their land one seeks for a knowledge of their formation and complexion.

Assuming that all Chinese mobs are pretty much alike, it may not be inappropriate to throw side-lights on their rioting instincts by giving the causes that led up to the Chengtu riot, which occurred on May 17, 1895. The proposition involved then, as now, was hatred to foreigners. The immediate cause of the riot dishonored the moral principle of a nation's right to exclusion and sprang from old wives' tales.

* * * *

In the possession of an Observer man are copies of the reports—hitherto unpublished—of the various missionaries who suffered by the Chengtu riot. In these documents the following paragraphs furnish the sole reason given by the rioters for their attack on foreign property:

"On May 17th, as we returned from our annual meeting, which convened at Chungking, one of the first questions asked me was whether we had entered the East Gate or not. It was further explained that there were stories afloat to the effect that foreigners had been seen looking at a stone outside the East Gate, and that later coolies had been seen there who had been sent to carry it away, but the local inhabitants would not allow this to be done. This rumor spread until the people from all parts of the city went in chairs to see the stone which contained the precious stones which the foreigners wanted. About this time was circulated a cow story which was believed by the masses. A man had been out to cut grass for his cow. When he returned she (the cow) said to him: 'You are very late this evening.' The man greatly surprised, said that he thought he was about on usual time. The cow said: 'No, it is very late; you can go inside and you will find that the old man has had his rice, and has put yours back in the kettle to warm.' The man, to his astonishment found things as had been predicted by the cow.

Having told his father, the old man told him to go and ask the cow about the weather. He received for answer: 'This year cannot be called dry; next year, and the following year the foreigners will come and take Sechuen.''

The other paragraph rings of the Dark Ages. It is as follows:

"Several placards were posted up, of which the following is a translation of one:

"'Notice is hereby given that at present foreign barbarians are hiring evil characters to steal small children that they may extract oil from them for their use. I have a female servant named Li who has personally seen this done. I therefore exhort all you good people not to allow your children to go out. I hope that you will act in accordance with this.'"

* * * *

So, placing credence in the words of a cow and believing that missionaries baked children to procure oil for medicinal purposes, the Chinese destroyed the mission at Chengtu and were saved from committing murder only by the flight of their intended victims.

* * * *

"There were six adults and four babies, shut up in this little dirty attic, within a few feet of our pleasant homes and obliged to hear the yelling, cursing mob destroying our property. The unearthly yelling and pounding of such a heathen mob is something terrible to hear.

"We were kept here from about 10 in the morning till late at night, afraid almost to stir lest we should be discovered. It was a hot day and we were next to the tile roof, with only one opening in the room and before night this had to be covered up for fear of discovery.

"Through cracks in the wall we could see their fiendish work of destruction. Before dark they had torn down and carried away our street wall, two gates, four or five shops, street chapel, two or three kitchens, servants' rooms, store rooms, guests rooms, school house, chapel, summer house, three dwellings and indeed everything even to the foundation stones. Only the birch walls of the dispensary remained by dark, and about 10 o'clock one side of that fell with a heavy thud. After 11 o'clock we called chairs and were taken under esescort to the Yamen. We reached there soon after midnight and only came out after ten most tedious nights of waiting.''

* * *

As has been suggested, the above is given merely to show what a Chinese mob is like and upon what apparently trifling cause its enemity may be directed against foreiners.

The Chinese riot illustrates Chinese characteristics, and the Boxers are composed of the same class of men that attacked the missionaries on May 17, 1895. It is up to the Powers.

SOME WORK.

Housekeepers Should Not Be Sacrificed to False Economy.

Insist upon proper appliances to do your work with. A carpet sweeper costs but $2, and it is an incalculable saving of the housewife's strength. Green wood is enough to wear out the patience of a saint. A crack in the oven will upset the plans and peace of a whole family. And a smokey flue almost jeopardizes a woman's chances of heaven.

These are a housekeeper's tools, and she should see to it that they are in good working order. More than this, she should arrange her workshop to the very best advantage. Labor is multiplied by having to go hither and yon for utensils and ingredients. Think out an arrangement that will save you steps.

Do not sacrifice yourself to a false notion of economy. Once a farmer's wife for years did the ironing for a family of six with two irons. Think of the waste of wood and strength, and the time and temper involved in that little piece of mismanagement.

An economy that wears out the mother of a family is dear at any cost. It is the pernicious kind that risks breaking the mainspring to save buying a ten-cent watch key.

Learn to save yourself. Don't stand to shell peas, but sit. Do not wash dishes with lukewarm water or iron with half-heated irons. Lie down and rest until both are hot.

WANTS FOREIGN PROTECTORATE.

The Emperor Wants Foreign Powers to Interfere, Depose the Empress, Move the Capitol, Set up a New Government and Give Him a Chance to Rule—100,000 Could Conquer China, But Not Less Than 1,000,000 Could Rule It.

London, June 19—The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express, telegraphing yesterday, says: "Weng Tung Ho, Emperor Kwang Hsu's tutor and confidant, who was dismissed by the Dowager Empress after the coup 'd etat in 1898, sends with the special sanction of the Emperor and his party, including three Viceroys,—a message to the people of the west. In part it is as follows:

"'His Majesty is convinced, amply trustworthy sources, that the loyal support of many scores of millions of the Chinese will be accorded to his proposals for putting to an end the state of anarchy brought about by the action of the Empress Tsi Tsi.

"'The government of China being virtually non-existent, the Emperor proposes that the foreign powers whose troops dominate the capital shall remove his imperial person from the palace in which His Majesty is confined a prisoner, shall declare Empress Tsi Tsi and her present ministers to be usurpers, and bring Emperor Kwang Hsu to Nanking, Wuching or Shanghai, whichever the said foreign powers deem to be the most suitable situation for the new capital of the Chinese empire, under the new conditions.

"'It is proposed by His Majesty and his advisers that the foreign powers should declare a joint protectorate and undertake the task of governing the country himself.'"

"The message suggests that the protectorate should abolish certain boards in Pekin; appoint new ministers; abolish the existing so-called armies; establish the gendarmies under foreign control; establish a uniform currency; re-adjust taxation and insure the freedom of religion.

"China is ripe for the change of tide which the reactionaries vainly seek o stem. If it is so that the foreign powers seriously contemplate the dismemberment of the Chinese empire, they have before them the huge task of facing dense millions who, although lacking in training and who make but contemptible soldiers, possess boundless powers of passive resistance, and would wear out the patience of any European rulers seeking to govern them without regard to the prejudices of the oldest civilization.

"The question of the division and conquest of China would be possible with 100,000 troops, but to retain the government would require 1,000,000 soldiers and centuries of work.

"'His Majesty and his advisers beg America and Japan to pause before resorting to dismemberment, which can be deferred at least until the Emperor's efforts to govern his people and to restore the happiness of this great division of the human race have proved abortive. If the people are assured that the powers are guiding and protecting His Majesty, and do not intend to swallow the county piece-meal, they and the soldiers will return unquestionablp to the allegiance from which the Empress diverted them.'"

THE LAST OF A FAMOUS FAMILY OF PREACHERS.

"Father Tom's" Eccentricity—Keeper of the Town Clock—Surprises in the Pulpit—Ordination of a Woman—Features of His Church.

Many admirers of the Rev. Thomas K. Beecher, brother of Henry Ward Beecher, who died at Elmira, N. Y., recently, believe that he was the most original thinker of that famous family. He united to the power of reasoning of his brother Edward much of the poetical thought of Henry Ward. Lyman Beecher, father of the ten Beechers, is reported to have said that Thomas K. was the flower of the family. This has not been the judgment of the world, but on one point there is general agreement. Thomas K. was the oddest of them all. "Father Tom," as he was affectionately called in Elmira and throughout this part of the state, has been accused of rather priding himself on his eccentricity. You never could tell what he was going to do, but you could generally count on his doing something you didn't expect.

"Mr. Beecher," said a woman parishioner to him once, "when I see you out of the pulpit I think you ought never to get in it; but when I see you in the pulpit I think you ought never to get out."

He seemed to enjoy astonishing conventional folk sometimes. Once he took a notion that lager beer would be good for his health. Instead of taking the medicine at his own home he used to walk in at the front door of the most conspicuous saloon in Elmira, pull out a nickel at the bar and quaff the beer. This troubled his parishioners, and they remonstrated with him, but he told them that he didn't care what folks thought about him, he was taking the beer as a medicine, and he din't propose to do it secretly, as if he was ashamed of it. After a while he quit the beer, not, as he was careful to explain, because he thought it was wrong, but because it didn't agree with him.

Mr. Beecher knew a great deal about many things. Many persons may recall the fashion in which he demolished a scientific text-book, written by a well-known man and used extensively in schools. Mr. Beecher pointed out inaccuracies in statement and false reasoning until he completely riddled the work. In his early days he studied mechanics, and at one time ran a locomotive from Buffalo to New York. In the earlier stage of his ministry he used to repair sewing machines for the women of his flock. He could make a watch, and so great was his delight in that sort of work that he once asked the Elmira authorities to make him custodian of the town clock. They granted his request, and for years Mr. Beecher served in this capacity at a salary of $12 a year. He took great pride in keeping that town clock exactly right, and when the timepiece happened to get a few seconds wrong he used to put up a sign on the door of the door of the tower reading like this: "This clock is two seconds late to-day, but it will be all right tomorrow."

He was as peculiar in the pulpit as out of it, and did what seemed to him right. One of the best illustrations of this has already been told, but will bear recalling. One Sunday he preached in the church of his brother, Henry Ward Beecher, in Brooklyn, while the Plymouth pastor was away. Because of Henry Ward's absence the crowd of strangers that used to fill Plymouth Church was diverted elsewhere in part, and the congregation was not very large. Before beginning his sermon the preacher arose and said: "All those who have come here to worship Henry Ward Beecher will now have a chance to retire; all those who have come to worship God will remain."

At the close of another brilliant sermon he startled the congregation by slapping his manuscript together suddenly and calling "Time to wake up!" after which he put his sermon into his pocket and walked out.

Park Church was made by Mr. Beecher into an institutional church, the first of the sort, it is said, in the country. He put in a stage for theatrical productions, bowling alleys, gymnasiums and parlors. It was a great innovation at the time and caused considerable talk, but "Father Tom" did not mind that. It took years to build, because the pastor would not permit a brick or a stone to go into the building until it was paid for, and sometimes there were long waits. The Sunday school he made a remarkable institution. Every lesson was written by Mr. Beecher himself. The school was graded as rigidly as any ward day school, and the children had to learn their lessons just as thoroughly as in a secular school, or quit. In the details the pastor was assisted by Mrs. Beecher, but the plans were all his own. As a result of his personality and his system the school had a phenomenal growth and reached a very large membership. On the first Sunday in each month Mr. Beecher used to preach a special sermon to the children, and attendance at this service was made a requirement for promotion. As a result the entire school used to be there.

For many years Mr. Beecher had been but a shadow of his former self. The old power and vigor had departed, and his eyes no longer gleamed as they used to from that massive forehead which his admirers compared to the Greek conception of Jupiter. This change dated from the tragic death of his brother James, with whom he had lived on terms of peculiar intimacy and affection.

His death has come as a personal loss not only to Elmira but to all this part of the state.—N. Y. Sun.

A Princely Salary.

Edward P. Bryan, of St. Louis, who has been engaged to look after the new underground tunnel in New York city, is the son of an Episcopalian clergyman. Born in Ohio, but descended from an old and distinguished Virginia family, he entered the service of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad in 1865, while still young. His first work was that of a telegraph operator, his office being in Lebanon, Ky. After occupying several subordinate positions, he became the agent of the road in Frankfort, and in August, 1891, he was appointed superintendent of the company's terminals in Louisville. He held this office only until the following February, relinquishing it, however, simply because he was wanted in a more responsible position. From the early part of 1892 until 1895 he took charge of the company's terminals in St. Louis. Mr. Bryan comes to New York under a five-year contract at a salary of $20,000 a year.

RHEUMATISM

Distorts Muscles, Shatters Nerves, Stiffens Joints.

Is due to an acid poison which gains access to the blood through failure of the proper organs to carry off and keep the system clear of all morbid, effete matter. This poison through the general circulation is deposited in the joints, muscles and nerves, causing the most intense pain.

Rheumatism may attack with such suddenness and severity as to make within a few days a healthy, active person helpless and bed-ridden, with distorted limbs and shattered nerves; or it may be slow in developing, with slight wandering pains, just severe enough to make one feel uncomfortable; the tendency in such cases is to grow worse, and finally become chronic.

Like other blood diseases, Rheumatism is often inherited, and exposure to damp or cold, want of proper food, insufficient clothing, or anything calculated to impair the health, will frequently cause it to develop in early life, but more often not until middle age or later. In whatever form, whether acute or chronic, acquired or inherited, Rheumatism is Strictly a Blood Disease, and no liniment or other external treatment can reach the trouble. Neither do the preparations of potash and mercury, and the various mineral salts, which the doctors always prescribe, cure Rheumatism, but ruin the digestion and break down the constitution.

A remedy which builds up the general health and at the same time rids the system of the poison is the only safe and certain cure for Rheumatism. S. S. S., made of roots, herbs and barks of wonderful solvent, purifying properties, attacks the disease in the right way, and in the right place—the blood—and quickly neutralizes the acid and dissolves all poisonous deposits, stimulates and reinforces the overworked, worn-out organs, and clears the system of all unhealthy accumulations. S. S. S. cures permanently and thoroughly, and keeps the blood in a pure, healthy state.

Mr. J. O. Malley, 123 W. 15th Street, Indianapolis, Ind., for eighteen months was so terribly afflicted with Rheumatism he was unable to feed or dress himself. Doctors said his case was hopeless. He had tried fifty-two prescriptions that friends had given him, without the slightest relief. A few bottles of S. S. S. cured him permanently, and he has never had a rheumatic pain since. This was five years ago.

We will send free our special book on Rheumatism, which should be in the hands of every sufferer from this torturing disease. Our physicians have made blood and skin diseases a life study, and will give you any information or advice wanted, so write them fully and freely about your case. We make no charge whatever for this service. Address, SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

THE CALLING OF SPENCER.

Down in the Shoestring district in 1894 the Populists and Republicans sent to Congress the most wonderful specimen of the peculiar variety of stateman which that wonderful mud-sill revolution in politics turned up. This individual was the eccentric and unbalanced Baptist preacher, Rev. Chas. H. Martin. To his credit, be it said, he had not the evil intentions of his associates in the office-grab game, but was merely their dupe, and, we believe, really thought that he could do some good. By his own confession on the stump, he had not only not thought of running for Congress three months before the time, but at the same time had never given the silver question, which was then red hot, a moment's thought. And he said in his speeches, that when he was nominated and saw that he had to study the financial question, he looked into it, and got the whole subject down in a few minutes. At one glance, he said, he realized that if you double the volume of money, you double prices, therefore the volume of money should be doubled at once. This was all there was in the subject, he affirmed, and any two-year old boy who couldn't understand the whole thing in two minutes, ought to be taken out and licked.

In Martin's district there was a little old man named Flake—the country people called him "old man Fleak"—who was a mighty Populist, and afterwards became what is known as a Pritchard Populist. Flake knew that Martin was an exceedingly well educated man, and a smart talker and could work on the Populist people and their sympathizers as no other man in the district on whom they could lay their hands, could do, and his great popularity as a country preacher gave color to the sincerity of the movement. "Old man Fleak" went to Martin, told him he had to run for Congress and save the people, and had him nominated without opposition. Martin started up his campaign, preaching on Sunday and making the most idiotic speeches during the week. But idiotic speeches were in demand that year, and he was sent to Congress.

All the above, however, is by the way merely. What we wanted to say was that Martin declared in his speeches that the Lord sent "Lige" Flake to tell him to run for Congress, and thus his mission became a divine one. We have since been interested in candidates who came forth under peculiar circumstance and thus have been watching our townsman, Judge Adams, who intimated a few days ago in a speech that he had been called as David of old from the sheepfold, to save Israel from the politicians and tricksters and office seekers. Up till this morning, however, we had not been informed as to the person of the messenger who carried the summons to the Judge. The very welcome information has come from a speech by the Judge at Fayetteville a few days ago, and his words are reported by the Fayetteville Observer as follows:

I did not seek nor desire the nomination for Governor, but just before the convention met, and while I was lying in bed, an old gray-haired man came to my side, and placing his hand on mine said: 'In 1861 I was compelled to fight for the rich white man and his slaves, though I had none and now these same white men want me to give them power over my vote and the vote of my son. You must champion our cause.

That was a most dramatic scene, we have no doubt. Think of it. Let us imagine all the surroundings. The coming champion of Israel may have been taking his afternoon siesta when the gray-haired messenger arrived, and startled from his troublous dreams of the thousand responsibilities bearing like death upon his shoulders, he may have been mistaken in what he saw. The venerable messenger that rose before his half waking eye may have been only that little "jay bird-headed Holton," or it might have been the dusky Abraham, either of whom a fertile imagination like that of the Judge, stimulated by dreams and too sudden awakening could easily have transformed into a battle scared bushwhacker from the recesses of Moonshine Hollow.

While it might have been thus, as was said, we prefer to think otherwise, and give the full blown champion the benefit of the doubt. We prefer to think of the scene as occuring just at day dawn, the mystic hour when owls go to bed, when affairs of honor are settled, and when a fevered, restless, champion of the people should be leaving his sleepless couch, to assume the heavy burdens of the day just a-borning. The messenger, we prefer to believe, resembled father Time, rather than the little "jaybird headed" chairman who usually performs such services. In his skinny hand, like those of the Ancient Mariner, he held a scroll-record of battles he had fought for rich white men. The other hand he stretched pleadingly towards the potential champion. In vain did the awakened one plead excuses. "Am I not," said he, "already running for 26 offices for the purpose of saving the people? Have I not frequently, cheerfully and persistently, offered myself upon the altar of office for the good of Israel?" But it was all in vain; the struggle was prolonged till sunrise, nay, till long thereafter, ere the patriarch gained the consent of the champion to stand for the cause of the people, and took his departure. But when he did, his smile of satisfaction was angelic.

Thus another statesman was called. Of course the Judge gets a little mixed in a matter of so great moment, but we are keeping up with him. So far, we have found that he was called from the sheepfold to save Isreal, and the messenger who called him was a skinny looking man with white hair and creaking voice. We anxiously await furthur information.

What One Woman Thinks.

It is very hard for a wife to remember sometimes that Adam was made first.

The smallest act may be glorified by the kindly spirit that prompts its performance.

This world would again be an Eden if men would only do what women think they ought to.

The woman who can put on her shoes without sitting on the floor is about as rare as the man who goes to bed without hanging his necktie on the gas jet.

Narrow Wedding Rings.

Now that fashion has decreed that the wedding ring shall be an inconspicuous band of gold, hardly wider than is necessary for a guard for other rings, jewelers say that women with the good old-fashioned kind, which made the finger look as if it was in a straitjacket, are coming to have the rings shaved down to the prevailing style.

A man complains of this as showing a lack of sentiment in regard to woman's most precious possession, but it is safe to assume that nothing but the dictates of Mme. Grundy, which one knows cannot be ignored, had made the thick, wide, unwieldy bands once in vogue bearable to the owners and wearers.

It is not the weight of the wedding ring which makes the marital tie hard to break.

FINE WHITE SHIRTS.

High Prices Paid by Some Men for This Item of Their Apparel.

A man can buy a good, well-made, well-fitting white shirt for a dollar; he can buy other white shirts for less than that; and then he can get shirts made to order at any price he wishes to pay, up to $10 each. He can find establishments were the lowest-priced white shirts kept in stock sells at $3.50, and where the lowest-priced shirt made to order is sold at $4, or $48 a dozen. A shirt of this sort will have a body of the best domestic cotton, and a plain linen bosom; it would be simply a fine, handsome, well-made shirt; and probably more than 50 per cent. of the shirts sold here would be of that price and description; the other 50 per cent or so being shirts finer still. At $5.50, for example,, or at $6 with the collar attached, could be had a shirt with a body of French muslin, and a bosom of pique of very fine quality. The patterns of the pique are likely to be rather simple than otherwise in design, and the shirts are made sometimes with the lines of pique running vertically in the bosom, and sometimes with the line horizontal. Subdued in effect as the pattern is, the pique-bosomed shirt might nevertheless seem to some men rather fanciful; but there can be no doubt that many of the fine shirts of this character are thoroughly artistic productions. A shirt of this kind, as it comes from the hands of the expert ironer, with the delicate pique pattern showing faintly in absolutely faultless lines upon a bosom so ironed that it has a slight convexity of outline and the perfect uniformity of a shield, is certainly an object that is agreeable to the eye.

Pique-bosomed shirts are worn chiefly by young men. Of all the higher-priced dress shirts, such as are here referred to, taken together, perhaps 25 per cent would be made with pique bosoms; 75 per cent. being made with plain linen bosoms.

A shirt that sells at $9, or $108 a dozen, is made with a body of figured linen batiste, with an extra fine linen bosom; the collar and cuffs are attached. All the materials of which this shirt is made are fine and sheer and beautiful and very light; a complete shirt of this sort.

All fine dress shirts, such as are here mentioned, are invariably made with cuffs attached, and it was not necessary that they should be; and yet it was said that if the wearer desired to attain the acme of perfection in his apparel, and to be able to withstand any scrutiny, he had his shirts made with collars as well as cuffs attached.

Men that wear shirts of these sorts buy four or five dozen of them a year, or perhaps more; they don't wear them after signs of wear appear and the shirts go often to the laundry, which helps to wear them out. It is common thing for men ordering such shirts to order, say, two dozen at a time, having one dozen perhaps, sent to their country house and one dozen sent to their city house; and the purchasers of goods of this kind are not confined to customers from this city and neighborhood.—N. Y. Sun.

A Needle Book.

This little needle book is shown in the actual size. It has a foundation of cardboard not very stiff, cut double the shape and size of the illustration without a join up the back; the piece when cut out thus is a diamond shape; it is covered with a piece of silk or satin, embroidered with the little rosebud spray, and the border shown, or a piece of broche may be used instead. It is lined with plain silk or satin of a contrasting color; the embroidered piece should be lined with a thin layer of wadding, then stretched over the card, the edges being turned over and laced across from side to side.

The lining silk should also have a thin layer of wadding put over it; the edges are turned in, and it is fixed to the inside of card by pins, then seamed neatly to the turned-in edge of the silk. The stitches are hidden by a tiny silk cord which finishes the edge. Cut two pieces of white cashmere or fine flannel a little smaller than the cardboard, pink the edges, and sew them into the center of the book, fold the book over in the center, press it to bend the card. Sew baby ribbon on the two corners, and tie in a bow.

Hetty Green at Home.

Hetty Green, the richest woman in America, lives modestly in two small flats in a brick block in Hoboken, N. J. There are two electric push bells at the door, under each of which one finds the name "C. Dewey." Mrs. Green prefers that the public should not know where her home is situated, and she uses this name becaues her pet dog's name is Dewey, and she commonly calls it "Cutie." The parlor is in the lower suite, and is a little larger than a good-sized closet. A couch, a small table and three chairs are the furnishings, and the ornamentation is quite as simple.

PHYSICAL DEFECTS.

It is not easy to say why so many people have weak ankles. The ankles of children bend in when they walk, and parents, thinking they will outgrow the trouble, pay no attention to it. The consequence is that the turning in becomes a habit, which is not corrected in later life. Little children should have the ankles rubbed with alcohol if they show any signs of weakness.

Young children ought to wear shoes without heels, and the condition of the heels worn by the older ones should be watched carefully. When a heel is worn on one side the ankle will naturally turn over on that side. Carelessness in the fit of shoes, and in wearing shoes that are turned over, will cause the ankles to turn, and make walking both tiresome and awkward. If the ankles habitually bend either in or out in walking, it is a good plan, when buying new shoes, to have the heels lowered a little on the opposite side. In the same a habit of turning the heels over on one side can be counteracted by lowering them on the other.

To strengthen the ankles and make them supple, thereby rendering walking easier and more graceful, practice the following exercises:

Bend the foot forward, backward, sideways. Rotate it slowly at the ankle. Standing on one foot, shake the other leg from the thigh, letting the ankle joint perfectly loose, so that the foot moves freely. Rise on the toes, so that the weight is supported by the toes and the balls of the feet, with the heels lifted high from the floor.

In a Western town the other day a little boy was tried before the police justice for using improper language. After discharging the youngster because of his tender years, the magistrate asked the boy's father: "Do you send that boy to Sunday-school?" "What's that to you?" responded the father. "Five dollars for contempt of court,' said his honor, and the man had to pay it.

Sherman's Gloomy End.

Chattanooga Times.

John Sherman is left a widower. He is childless. He is the only one living of a large family of brothers, all of whom were prominent and famous in national affairs. His situation is pathetic, not to say very sorrowful. An old man, broken by the labor and storms of state, finds himself politically isolated, all of his family that were nearly his own age have gone; he is a blighted oak, a partial mental wreck; querulous as natural, going down to his tomb a most gloomy figure.

A NIGHT OF TERROR.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. "All thought that she must soon die from pneumonia, but she begged for Dr. Kings New Discovery, saying that it had more than once saved her life, and had cured her of consumption. After three doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free at C. E. Holton's drug store.

A Mother's Song.

A song of the beautiful home above;
Sang it as only a woman sings
Whose heart is full of a mother's love.

And many a time in the years that came
He heard the sound of that low, sweet song;
It took him back to his childhood days;
It kept his feet from the paths of wrong.

A mother spoke to her child one day
In an angry voice, that made him start
As if an arrow had sped that way
And pierced his loving and tender heart.

And when he had grown to man's estate,
And was tempted and tried as all men are,
He fell; for that mother's angry words

THE JUDGE'S SON

On a hill, enclosed by large, low cedars, stood the old, moss-grown, vine-covered mansion of Judge Scarritt. His was the grandest house in the village, and he was the richest man. A winding path and drive led up to the low verandah where, in a hammock, and surounded with dogs large and small, lay the only son of the old Judge. He was stretched out lazily and the half-smoked cigar had fallen to the floor.

Judge Scarritt's son was a handsome young fellow of twenty-two, possessing a fine athletic form, with six feet of brawn and muscle. He is the idol of his old father's heart, his constant companion and adviser. Adviser, because the Judge always asks his opinion before he decides anything, and whatever the son thought best the Judge was sure to do.

People have called Judge Scarritt a hard, harsh old man, but, although he may have appeared so to others, he was gentle and kindness itself to his son. He was completely wrapped up in the boy, and his great love was returned. I never saw father and son so affectionate. Everything a young man could wish for the Judge's son had.

At the boy's birth the Judge's girl wife died. She smiled faintly as the little bundle of humanity was placed in her husband's arms.

"Love him, dear, for my sake—call him Andrew."

The Judge was broken-hearted over her death. He left the child under nurses' care and traveled unceasingly for a year of more.

It occurred to him one day that there was some one who had a claim on him, and he hurried back to his little son, who had grown to be a healthy child. The Judge took him to the old stone mansion where his young wife had died, and it was there the little Andrew grew up into manhood.

* * * * * * * * * * *

"Hello, Jack, old boy; have I been asleep?" the young man in the hammock, yawns, as he is awakened by one of the dogs licking his face.

At his voice the whole pack of dogs bounded around him, trying to shower their canine caresses on his face. He laughingly sprang to his feet and strolled down the path to see if the Judge was coming.

"My, it's warm," he exclaimed, wiping his face with his cambric handkerchief. "I see they want more men for Company F, Third Regiment. Guess I'll enlist to-morrow morning. What will father say, though? Well, I believe it to be my duty, and he mustn't interefere. Poor old dad! It will go hard with him, I reckon, but it must be done.'

A horse with the judge on its back appeared before him, and the eyes of both men lighted up with love as they met in the road.

"Ha, Andy, my boy; that you? I'm awfully warm; been out to Dansborough's. Where've you been?"

"None, none at all; only his son has enlisted and the old man feels pretty badly."

Andrew walked beside his father's horse home to the house, then went to his room to dress for supper.

"I see what; father isn't ever going to give his consent to my joining the army. I'll not ask it, for I intend to do it, and the sooner the better."

He rode over to see little Amy Gleason that evening and told her his intentions.

"Oh, Andy!" she cried.

"There, dearest, don't cry. You know I may not get killed. Won't you tell me to go, darling?" Andrew asked, stroking her soft hair.

"Yes, Andrew, go. It's not for me to beg you not to. You are going for a just cause, and God bless you and bring you back," she replied.

"Amen," Andrew said, folding her in his arms.

* * * * * * * *

Next morning I met him down at Shark's and asked him if he was going to enlist.

"Yes, Kid," he answered (he always called me Kid).

"O, Mr. Andy!, Won't you let me go with you? I can be your orderly," I pleaded.

"Ha! ha! ha!" he laughed. "Be my orderly! Too bad, little Kid, but I'm afraid not."

He passed into the examination room and soon returned with a smile on his face.

"Are you mustered in?" I asked eagerly.

"Yes. Want to go with me to get my suit?"

I accepted gladly. He was soon dressed in the blue, and then said he would go home.

I followed him and witnessed the meeting between the old judge and his son Andrew.

"O, my son, my son!" the judge cried. "What have you done?"

"Nothing, father; only enlisted. Come, brace up. It was my duty. Surely you do not think I have done wrong?"

"Andrew, my son! How can I let you go! Andy! Andy!"

"Now, father, don't! Please don't. I will come back."

The judge could not be comforted. He knew what the chances were of his son coming back, and the blow was a heavy one.

The day came when the two had to part. The judge broke down and had to be carried away.

Amy clung to her lover tearlessly; her very heart was being torn out it seemed. At last he had to leave her, and the last she saw of him was when he rushed past the guard to the platform of the fast going train and waved his cap as a last good-bye.

* * * * * * * *

Weeks passed into months, and still the terrible fighting went on. (I forgot to tell you I ran away, and it was too late to send me back I showed my face. The boys made a pet of me and I was happy, for I was with Andy.)

I was nearly scared out of my wits and always hid when a fight was going on.

One day after a hard battle the boys returned to camp. Some were bleeding, some dying, and I was afraid my Andy had shared a worse fate, but my heart leaped with joy when I saw him coming towards me. His head was bound and his face haggard and drawn with pain.

"Are you hurt?" I asked anxiously.

"Not bad. Only a cut. Where were you during the fight?"

"I hid in the woods."

He laughed, but not the free, merry laugh that used to ring out so joyously.

One morning they were preparing for battle, and I was helping Andy with his things.

"Look here, Kid; if I get killed you must go back to father and little Amy. Tell them I died thinking of them. on the field of battle. There, don't cry. You know I am liable to be shot, and again I may be spared. If I don't come back with the rest you must come and find me. Take this chain—it has a locket on the end with Amy's picture and a lock of her hair—take it to her. You'll find a little Bible in my inside coat pocket; take it to father. You may have the ring on my little finger. Be sure you find me if I don't come back. You can get to the folks before a letter could, so you must go right away. The boys will help you—they said so. Now, I must go. Good-bye, Kid. Perhaps I'll not see you again."

He was gone. The sultry day came to a close. The weary men came back, all that was left, but no Andy. I looked in vain for him.

* * * * * * *

I ran to the ambulance and clambered to a seat beside the driver. We drove to the field in silence. I jumped down and began my search for the judge's son.

Still, cold faces were turned up to my anxious gaze and my heart ached when I thought of their loved ones who were waiting for them. Would Andy be dead? I stumbled over a soldier in my haste. A groan came from him and I stooped beside him.

"Mother," he feebly moaned. "Give me water."

I put my canteen to his parched lips and he drank eagerly. He looked up into my face and tried to thank me. His eyes spoke instead, then the poor fellow breathed his last.

One limb had been shot entirely off and his poor body was riddled with bullets. I sank down beside him and washed the blood off his face. He was dead, of course, but I called him by his name, entreating him to speak to me. I unclasped the chain, removed the ring from his finger, but didn't find the little Bible where he said it would be. I found it on the ground with a note pinned to its back. He had been able to finish it, and only the words, written in a scrawling, wandering way and smeared with his life blood, "Father and Amy, I have been called to go. Good-bye. I died——" were on it.

I watched them bury him; then true to their word, the men sent me home.

* * * * * * *

No word could have gotten there as soon as I did, so I knew I would have to tell the news to the old judge and Amy.

As I entered the little post office I saw the judge and Amy coming from the window. Amy saw me first and ran towards me.

"Have you news from Andrew? Tell me quick. Is he alive?"

The judge came up to us and I hardly knew him. He looked ten years older and his face was pale as death.

"Ah! You have come back; but where's my son?" he asked, hoarsely.

He read what I would say in my face and staggered against the wall. A crowd gathered around us and I saw Mrs. Gleason supporting her daughter.

"Tell us, boy, tell us. Is Andy Scarritt dead?" some one asked.

I pulled the chain and Bible out of my pocket, and gave the note to the Judge. He grabbed and read the few words, then fell with a groan to the floor.

I shall never forget that scene. The Judge and Amy were taken home; I went to the Scarritt mansion, but could not see the Judge. Days afterward he sent for me. I told him all.

The old Judge is an altogether different man. He goes around in a dazed sort of way and say he's half crazy. Poor old man. I reckon he is.

HOW TO BREW GOOD TEA.

THE CHINESE MINISTER TELLS HOW IT IS DONE.

He Knows All About It and Yet He Can't Give Many Points to Our Government—How the Brewing Is Done in the Flowery Kingdom.

His Excellency, Wu Ting Fang, Minister from China, who made a witty speech at the dinner of the tea experts, says the New York World, dictated the following rules—the Chinese rules—for brewing tea:

"To get down to the basic principles of tea brewing and tea drinking as practiced in China you must realize that at home we do not drink tea on stated occasions or only at meals, as you do here. With us tea is the national beverage. I might almost say, speaking to an American, that tea is the ice water of China. Instead of the silver water cooler, which constitutes an almost invaluable ornament of your dining rooms, you will find everywhere in China the teapot. Whenever we are thirsty we have recourse to the teapot instead of the cooler.

"Let us first consider the teapot itself. It is invariably of porcelain and varies in style, cost and dimensions in accordance with the taste, wealth and size of the family possessing it. It is, as you say, constantly 'in commission.' In the morning a sufficient quantity of the dry tea leaves is placed in it and on this is poured hot water. Let this infusion stand for a few minutes—say four or five—and you have what we, I think rightly, regard as a drink fit for the gods.

"It is always ready. Whenever the pot needs replenishing all we have to do is to add a little more tea and a little more water. There is no hard and fast rule as to the proportions of tea and water or as to the character of the tea itself. It is all a matter of individual taste. We use black or green tea and have it either weak or strong just as our tastes direct.

"We never drink it boiling hot, as is done in America and England, but at a moderate degree of warmth. To maintain this desirable temperature it is customary to cover the teapot with a sort of bag padded with cotton and lined with silk. A similar arrangement is often used in Egland and is there known as a 'cozy.'

"This is the usual family manner of preparing and drinking tea in China, but when visitors come courtesy demands that we should be a little more ceremonious. Then we have the tea brewed in individual cups, covered with dainty lids, in order to retain the heat and aroma. As a matter of course tea is always thus offered to a visitor the moment he enters a house.

"The family teapot is simply emptied and replenished every morning, and not scoured inside, as that would rob the vessel of its delicate aroma. In this way an old teapot acquires a degree of fragrance that is analogous to the seasoning of a pipe that has been long in use.

"We would regard with horror the suggestion that we should add anything to the contents of our teapots beyond hot water and tea." said the Minister, with a visible shudder. "Imagine putting rum in tea, as I am told is sometimes done here, and is said to be a common practice in Russia! A cultured taste revolts from the thought. The idea of milk and sugar is almost as bad.

"Just one hint more regarding tea and I am done," said Minister Wu. "Remember that while there are expensive teas and cheap teas, there are no really bad teas except those that have been adulterated with deleterious ingredients, and this very adulteration is practiced solely to meet the taste, or lack of taste, of consumers who persist in so spoiling their tea by the addition of such adulterants as rum and milk and sugar. If only they would drink their tea pure, as nature intended it to be drunk, they would instantly detect any attempt at adulteration, and that would be the end of the importation of impure teas."

Nothing that has ever yet been produced in the way of summer footwear for men will begin to compare for comfort, coolness and durability with shoes made of tan vici kid. If you have never tried shoes made of this material, ask any man who has worn them and you will find him ehthusiastic in their praise. But it is possible to have too much of a good thing and we find ourselves overstocked with certain lines of tan vici shoes So in order to reduce the surplus, we have cut some fifty pairs of the $3 50, $3.00 and $2.75 grades down to $2.48. You can see the samples of these in our north window the rest of this week and if you are going to need another pair of shoes this summer it will be worth your while to stop and take a look at these. DYSPEPSIA

"My wife suffered for many years from Nervous Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Sleeplessness and Nervous Debility" writes John Kelloes, Philadelphia. "We tried many physicians and numerous remedies, but with no results, until I heard of Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure. We bought six boxes, and the results far surpassed our expectations. She now eats and sleeps well, is gaining in flesh, and her color, which had got to be yellow and sickly, is now as fresh as when we were first married, and I tell her that Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure has made her ten years younger."

WINE OF CARDUI
Woman Knows Woman.

ZURICH, KAN., Jan. 31.
I used Wine of Cardui for nervousness and weakness in the womb. After taking one bottle I was well again. I am a midwife and always recommend Wine of Cardui to my lady friends during pregnancy and after birth as a tonic. Every lady who takes it finds that it does even more than is claimed for it.
MRS. V. M. BOISVERT.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Nobody knows woman like woman. Men go to medical colleges, study books and listen to lectures. They learn indirectly of the diseases of women, but they are men and can never fully understand the ailments, the sufferings, the agonies of mothers, wives and sisters. A woman knows. Mrs. Boisvert knows. She has passed through the trials and tribulations of her sex. She has been near by when her sisters suffered. She has seen them relieved and cured with Wine of Cardui. Is it any wonder she recommends it? Is it any wonder that thousands of other women recommend it. They know. They have actual experience to prompt them. They spread the tidings from mouth to mouth, telling how Wine of Cardui helps young girls, helps the weak of all ages, helps and cures all womanly ills.

MISS SARAH NEWELL FOUND.

The Missing Richmond Girl for Whom the Greensboro Officers Have Been Searching.

Saturday's Telegram told of a search being made by the police officers of this city for Miss Sarah Newell, a young girl who disappeared from her home in Richmond, Va., on May 21st. The missing girl has been located in Statesville, where she arrived last Thursday on a visit to her sister.

It appears that Miss Newell left her home for a purpose, as she attempted to elope with a young man from Statesville Sunday. The Statesville correspondent of the Charlotte Observer says the young man in question arrived Saturday night and registered at the hotel as John Ward, from Baltimore. He met Miss Newell by appointment Sunday morning, and together they drove out into the country in search of some one to marry them.

Miss Newell's brother-in-law and a friend went in search of them, and late in the afternoon came upon them sitting on a country magistrate's front porch. When they appeared on the scene Ward made a hasty departure. It is presumed that the young woman was carried back to the home of her sister and is now secure from all harm.

WAYS OF COURTSHIP.

Odd Customs in Some Parts of Pennsylvana.

Time and progress have obliterated many of the social customs that were established in the colony that Penn founded. In the county of Busks, where many of Penn's descendants reside, and where he owned vast tracts of land, the ancient customs appertaining to courtship and marriage are still largely observed.

First of all, the country swain is not qualified to pay court to the girls of his neighborhod until he has a horse and carriage, and that is generally his first possession, either by gift from his father or the result of the hoarding of small savings. The team acquired, the young man is prepared to become the lover. He drives usually, not to some girl's house, but to church or a public gathering of both sexes, where he picks out a maiden who suits his fancy, and if she has not her escort and is willing he drives her home, and that is the opening for future calls and drives.

The country singing school and the lyceum, now nearly mere memories, have been the occasion for the beginnings of dreams of love that later led to matrimony.

Then, too, the team comes in advantageously during the Sunday school picnic season, the woods meetings conducted by the Methodist churches, and for dance parties and other social occasions.

The wooer's team has in the past been the cause of much worriment on certain occasions. Some evening, when he was spending the time pleasantly in the house of his sweetheart, his friends, having located him, proceeded to take the carriage apart and carry the sections to the roof of the barn; or, perchance, on top of a haystack, and there put the vehicle together. The wooer, coming for his team after the last lingering farewell to the object of his adoration, would be amazed to see his carriage in the place where his tormentors had left it. His only alternative was to walk home or bestride his horse and return the next day for his carriage, meanwhile being the subject of merciless raillery.

Sometimes the pranks took the form of reversing the wheels on the carriage, placing the rear higher wheels in front and the lower front wheels in the rear. Again, the horse might be unhitched from the carriage and placed back in the shafts, with its head towards the vehicle. These pranks have been abolished, however, as they became so annoying that arrests resulted, and the "fun" was discontinued.

Sometimes it was the custom to watch for the bride and bridegroom on their first drive after the wedding, and stretch a rope across the highway and "hold up" the couple until the demanded price was paid. This money, too, went for tipple at the nearest public house.

All this has been changed where more modern ideas prevail, but the calithumpian band still exists in even the more refined communities.

If the young husband is without means he frequently goes to reside with the bride's parents, and often becomes an employee of his father-in-law. Where there is some wealth the couple are sometimes started in life on a farm purchased by the bride's parents or by the husband's family. Both sides, if financially able, contribute the house furnishing. Very often this outfit includes family relics handed down from generation to generation.

Thus does a Pennsylvania rural family become established in the community in which perhaps both husband and wife were born, and where their ancestors dwelt in peace and happiness before them.—Phila. Press.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and othaches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to moke you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED BY

Johnston's Sarsaparilla

QUART BOTTLES.

"DANGER IN THE EARTH AND AIR; DANGER EVERYWHERE."

In a leading hotel, in a great city, a famous and aged physician was conversing. Listening to his wise and sententious discourse, were a group of well dressed men, evidently lawyers, business men and commercial travelers.

My firm belief, is "that medical science is certain yet to show that all diseases without exception are caused by invisible germs which are living organisms. Here is the germ of that terrible disease diphtheria. Here is the bacillus of typhoid fever; and here is the still more dreadful bacillus of tubercle which causes that most destructive of all diseases, consumption. This of that very common and supposed incurable disease, catarrh."

"I wish, Doctor," said the traveling man, "that you would tell us about catarrh. I have had it for years, and I am thoroughly discouraged."

The Doctor answered. "Catarrh, like diphtheria, consumption, typhoid fever, and a host of other diseases, is the result of a microbe invading the blood and attacking specially the mucous membrane. This foul and most disgusting disease is especially prevalent in the United States and it is rare to meet one who is not, or has not been troubled more or less with it. How often is he or she obliged to remain at home from pleasant entertainments, deprive themselves of many intellectual treats, from fear of the disagreeable odor arising from catarrhal affections. In its worst phase, the patient becomes loathsome both to himself and his friends.

"I believe," continued this great physician, "that the true way to heal catarrh is to medicate the blood. This can be done only by powerful alteratives which act as blood purifiers."

Betsy A. Marett, of Manistee, Manistee Co., Mich., writes:

Dear Sirs:—For ten years I was a sufferer from general debility and chronic catarrh. My face was pale as death. I was weak and short of breath. I could hardly walk, I was so dizzy and had a ringing in my head all the time. My hands and feet were always cold. My appetite was very poor. On getting up in the morning, my head swam so I was often obliged to lie down again. I had awful pains in the small of my back. I had a continual feeling of tiredness. My muscular power was almost entirely gone, and I couldn't go half a dozen steps without stopping to rest, and often that much exercise caused me to have a pain in my side. It seemed as though the blood had left my veins. The doctors said my blood had all turned to water. I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I tried the best physicians in the state, but failed to get any relief. My husband got me a bottle of Johnston's Sarsaparilla. I took it, and then I bought another. When these had been used, I was somewhat improved in health. I continued its use, and felt I was growing stronger; my sleep was refreshing, and it seemed as if I could feel new blood moving through my veins. I kept on taking it, and now consider myself a well and rugged woman. I work all the time, and am happy. I am positive that the Sarsaparilla saved my life. The sick headaches I have had since childhood, have disappeared, and my catarrh has almost entirely left me. I cannot be too thankful for what Johnston's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I recommend all women who have sick headaches to use your Sarsaparilla.

BOERS' NEW CAPITOL.

A Small Town Suddenly Transformed Into a City—50,000 British Chasing Boers North of Kroonstad.

London, June 12, 3:30 a. m.—Fifty thousand British troops are within half a hundred miles of the marauding Boers north of Kroonstad, and they are expected, of course, to make short work of them. Nevertheless, outside of the slender War Office telegrams no one knows what is going on. South of Kroonstad there is a wide gap. The railroad is only partially defended, and as General Kelly-Kenny has hurried all the available troops north, the assumption is that there is danger of a second raid. The loss of the Derbyshires is estimated at from 600 to 700 men. A dispatch from Maseru, dated June 11, says: "Fifteen hundred Boers surrendered to General Brabant in the Ficksburg district."

Machadorp has been officially proclaimed capital of the Transvaal. A Lorenzo Marques dispatch says that the village has swollen into a small city, the majority of the new inhabitants living in tents. An official Boer telegram asserts that the British have been defeated, with considerable loss at Donkerspoort, in the southern extremity of the Free State, ten miles from Norval's pont. It was thought this district had been cleared of Boers and rebels long ago.

The Boers still cling to Laing's Nek, but General Buller's forces are still working far around in that direction Lord Roberts has wired Cape Town that prior to Wednesday he liberated 151 officers and 3,500 of the rank and file. The Boers consequently only took off 900.

To Enliven the Elon Commencement.

The managers of the Elon College commencement were so fortunate as to secure the services of the Gate City Band to furnish music during the exercises. The members of the band went to Elon this afternoon, and it is fair to presume that no commencement at this institution has been supplied with better music than will be furnished by the Gate City boys.

The band has several other engagements to fill during the summer.
